INC Yourself Classes Offered At STLCC

ST. LOUIS, May 10, 2012 – The St. Louis City Comptroller, Darlene Green, is teaming up with Marks and Associates, and St. Louis Community College to bring back another round of INC Yourself. The free workshops and seminars, which will be offered at three campuses in the St. Louis Community College district May, June, and July, give aspiring and current business owners the information needed to start and maintain a small business.

Like in the past year, this year's attendees will learn from Business Coach, Sandra Marks of Marks and Associates how to start your business to how to buy a business you may not necessarily run. This year's workshops and seminars will cover various topics on how to create a clear and concise business plan to establishing the right business classification. Discussions on partnering with other businesses will be available for the ambitious and business savvy person looking to expand.

INC Yourself was established in 2011 by Comptroller Green and Marks. The workshops were sponsored by PNC Bank and St. Louis Community Colleges. The concept was simple and designed to help individuals turn their dreams or passions into businesses. The INC Yourself successful turnout prompted St. Louis Community College's Continuing Education Program to adopt the concept within their curriculum for this spring, summer and fall.

For more information or to sign up for the free INC Yourself workshops go to STLCCONED@STLCC.EDU or to stlcc.edu/ce.
