<td>In this presentation, representatives from the Department of Justice, SEARCH, the National Consortium for Justice Information and Statistics and the City of St. Louis’ Police Division will present an update on the sunsetting of the Uniform Crime Reporting Summary Reporting System (SRS) program on January 1, 2021, and the progress underway to transition all federal, state and local law enforcement agencies including the City of St. Louis Police Division to National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS). Real-life examples of how data can be used for both tactical and strategic planning purposes, and researchers will provide an overview of how agencies can use NIBRS data to provide richly detailed information to policymakers, media and the public to assist in better understanding crime in context.</td>
